Two new members have joined the leadership team at Dauterive Hospital in New Iberia.

Annette Schouest has been named medical unit director, and Corey Duplechain has been named cardiac cath lab director. Schouest served as interim director for several months before accepting the post on a permanent basis.

Schouest, a resident and native of St. Martinville, has been with the Hospital Corporation of America since 1988, when she was named maternal child care director at Dauterive. She moved to Women's & Children's Hospital in Lafayette from 2000 to 2006, when she returned to Dauterive as a supervisor and nurse educator.

Duplechain graduated from Beau Chene High School in 1998 in his native Arnaudville before attending McNeese State University in Lake Charles. He earned a degree in radiologic technology from there in 2002 and went on to work as a cath lab specialist technologist at Baton Rouge General Medical Center and a cath lab supply coordinator at Regional Medical Center of Acadiana in Lafayette.
